

That sounds absolutely ridiculous! Who would go through all that?

Written by ilabz

Monday, 17 November 2008 09:52 -

Nobody says a breeder HAS to do any of this. These are merely the precautions currently recommended by the Cornell Feline Health Center and the recommendations which came out of the Winn Foundation sponsored Seminar on FIP/FECV. It is an option kitten buyers can use in determining which breeder to select if they so choose, but it is by no mean mandatory.